Q: Netbeans having trouble with my Apache Cordova project I have been working on an Android app project using Apache Cordova for the last couple of months, it has worked fine, but today it stopped working, I just don't know why. After the app downloaded and installed successfully I noticed that the ./platforms folder in my project was missing, it was as if a clean build of the project was being run. I then ran the command: $ cordova platform add android --save and to my horror it gave me the following error: Creating Android project... Updating local platform "android" via "cordova" plugin Error: An error occurred while creating the android project. You may not have the required environment variables set. I have done a little Googling on this issue, I have tried: Running the platform update, I was unable to run that in the terminal Removing and then installing the platform Reinstalling the plugin and updating it Removing the platforms folder entirely and re-adding them Removing and re-adding the platforms in the project via the Project Structure menu Removing and re-adding the plugins, even the basic Cordova plugin for Android I have tried all of the above and it still has not fixed the problem. My $PATH variable contains the following: /Users/sean/.nvm/versions/node/v4.4.3/bin:/Users/sean/.rvm/gems/ruby-2.4.1/bin:/Users/sean/.rvm/gems/ruby-2.4.1@global/bin:/Users/sean/.rvm/rubies/ruby-2.4.1/bin:/usr/local/bin:/usr/bin:/bin:/usr/sbin:/sbin:/Users/sean/.nvm/versions/node/v4.4.3/bin:/Users/sean/.nvm/versions/node/v4.4.3/lib/node_modules/cordova/bin:/Users/sean/.rvm/gems/ruby-2.4.1@global/bin:/Users/sean/.rvm/
